

"Peter Mühlhäußer is an extraordinarily gifted young sculptor. His skills and esthetic form sense are almost alien to the contemporary artistic milieu of his native Germany, which is probably why he chose to study at the academy. His exuberant flourish and taste for vulgarity belies his sophisticated commentary on human behavior and stereotypes. The faculty committee feels that Peter's ambitions, skills, and likability will serve him well in what is already a bi-national exhibition career (US & Germany)."

-John Jacobsmeyer, Chair of Faculty of The New York Academy of Art